Lake Forest . . . There you have a two word description of a campus celebrated throughout the country for its beauty. "The Forest"—65 wooded acres. Washing its glistening shores, "The Lake." From a fifty-foot bluff you catch the spell of Lake Michigan's endless horizon.

In summer white sails move slowly across the deep blue of lake and sky. . . . In winter the ice king takes over with austere splendor. . . . In all seasons Lake Forest students wander down to the lakeside after classes, drawn by its ever-changing moods.

. . . the faculty

"So much depends on your instructor." . . . The faculty of Lake Forest recognizes and accepts this responsibility. The measure of its success in this can be gauged by the warm and friendly relationship between faculty and students. Lake Forest is rather famous for this quality. New students will tell you that the members of the faculty give each student the feeling that they are interested in you personally. These men and women are not only outstanding in their various departments but cosmopolitan in their outside interests. When you go to consult an instructor about class work (which you are encouraged to do at any time) it is quite likely that when the problem under discussion is finished you will stay a moment for a chat about your hobby. . . . The faculty has the gift of bringing out the best in the students. With trained eyes and minds they recognize latent ability and bring it to the fore. Most important of all is their enthusiasm for their own subjects. It's catching. Through them you will find Learning a pleasure —a living, growing experience with practical results which will speak for themselves.

Youth on the campus . . . College days, college associations, college friendships. All these combine to make your years at Lake Forest among the happiest of your life. Here friendships are born in an instant which last a lifetime. These friendships formed at Lake Forest not only add immeasurably to the pleasure of your student days but continue to enrich your future life, be it that of career diplomat, socialite, business executive, or just plain Mr. & Mrs. Jones carving out a well rounded family life.

The Commons . . . You will have many a meal at Calvin Durand Commons, prepared under the supervision of skilled dieticians. In friendly groups of diners the stimulus of conversation makes the dining interlude one of the day's delights. The Commons is the festive scene of special college dinners at Halloween, at Christmas, Easter, Dad's day and Commencement. These occasions are highlighted by music, special rituals, after-dinner singing and good fellowship for all.

THE CITY OF LAKE FOREST

The city of Lake Forest, which has grown up around the college in the past 75 years, is nationally noted for its great estates and socially prominent residents . . . This thriving suburban community of 7000 is served by the main lines of the Chicago & North Western, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and North Shore railroads. Its banks, theatres, shops, its beautiful churches, magnificent public library and other city institutions are accessible and open to Lake Forest students. A feeling of mutual esteem and co-operation exists between the town and college. In beauty and convenience the city, like the campus, is unique.

CHICAGO

LAKE FOREST

. . . the college for you

Lake Forest College has an enviable suburban location where the climate, tempered by Lake Michigan winter and summer, is healthful and invigorating. Century-old elms and oaks shade the broad avenues and winding lanes in an atmosphere of mellow tradition.

Yet the city of Chicago with all its cultural and industrial advantages is only an hour away. Near the College, north and south, along Lake Michigan's shores are the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and the Military Training Post, Fort Sheridan . . . Lake Forest students may visit these posts and, on occasion, attend military and naval functions.

Lake Forest is well housed. Its twenty-six buildings include eight dormitories, library, chapel, gymnasium, dining hall, and classroom halls. The curriculum offered by the College is comprehensive. Credits from Lake Forest are accepted by all universities and professional and graduate schools. The carefully chosen faculty is forward looking.

The Lake Forest group-system of instruction is designed to keep the student body limited. The result is a closely knit friendly community where the individual needs of every student are considered.

Lake Forest is well equipped to meet the challenge of today. She sends her students out into the world with a sound philosophy of life based upon Christian values, and the quality of Education essential to success in today's competitive world.
